COURSE ACTIVITIES

Operations Support Course:

Phase I

1. Phase I was completed on 30 September.

2. Our new film, "Man on a String" was used as practice material in Phase I of our current Operations Support Course. As a teaching device, it was highly successful. However, further showings of the film and additional refinements in the script will be necessary before the next running.

25X1A9A The Training Officer of the Office of Logistics came in to see Mrs. [REDACTED] regarding the showing of "Man on a String." When he scheduled the film in July for an October course, he was advised that it would not be available. However, it appears that since the "Two-Headed Spy" is shown to the Logistics Course, a similar tradecraft film is not essential. Further, since many of these same students attend the Operations Support Course, it is not desirable that the two films which play a major role in our discussions of tradecraft techniques should be included in a Logistics Course.

Mrs. [REDACTED] suggested that the short version of "Operation Overglow" might better serve their need for a film emphasizing logistical problems and their solutions. "Operation Overglow" would also consume approximately the same time as "Man on a String." The Training Officer, however, did not wish to show "Operation Overglow."

Phase II

Phase II with an enrollment of thirteen students started Monday, 3 October.

Budget & Finance:

The Budget & Finance Course No. 23 terminated on 30 September. The ten students were candidates for overseas duty at Class B stations. All students did remarkably well except two: One student did not appear to have adequate background, whereas the other did not appear to have the desire to learn. This information has been given to the Branches concerned.
